

Bios of people Councilman Donovan worked with on his changes

Alex Ramel

STAND.earth

Extreme Oil Field Director

Alex joined Stand.earth as the Extreme Oil Field Director in 2015. Throughout his career, Alex has focused on helping local communities take action to build sustainable futures. Prior to Stand, Alex was Energy and Policy Director for Sustainable Connections, where he led development and implementation of one of the most successful community energy efficiency campaigns in the United States. He has also spent the past several years volunteering as an organizer on Pacific Northwest regional political campaigns in which fossil fuel export has been a central issue.

Alex earned his BA in Environmental Policy and Planning at Huxley College of the Environment. He is the proud father to a 15-year-old son, Alden.

Eddy Ury

RE Sources

Clean Energy Program Manager

Eddy manages public engagement and advocacy in state & county policymaking and permitting processes. He collaborates with coalition partners in organizations, unions, tribes and local governments around the region to promote the clean energy transition and oppose coal, oil and gas export projects. Eddy represents RE Sources on the Executive Committee for the Stand Up to Oil coalition, the Steering Committee of the Alliance for Jobs & Clean Energy, and Bellingham's BlueGreen Waterfront Coalition. Before joining RE Sources staff in 2014, Eddy was an active citizen and student organizer while earning a B.A. in sociology from Western Washington University.

Tom Ehrlichman

Salish Law

Environmental Attorney